Interturbine Logistik and Pilatus Aircraft enter support agreement

Kaltenkirchen/Stans, January 2008

Pilatus Aircraft Ltd. has appointed Interturbine Logistik GmbH as aircraft manufacturer approved supplier of consumable materials for the PC-12 programme as depicted in the aircraft maintenance manual (AMM). The global support agreement will become operationally effective in January 2008.

Interturbine Logistik will provide material support to Pilatus customers, MRO stations and production facilities alike. Once the business is established it is intended to extend the support with additional commodities.

Both partners appreciate that in today's competitive airline marketplace speed of service and effective inventory management are essential in terms of product support. Interturbine brings decades of quality aviation distribution experience and offers excellent levels of service in the distribution of production and maintenance materials to the aerospace industry.

Some of the services offered by Interturbine include:

- AOG Support – 24/7 – 365 days a year
- Stocking locations and Customer Service Centers around the world
- A large inventory of stock materials and products for just in time material supply
- One Stop Source Service for all maintenance materials

'We are extremely proud and excited to add Pilatus Aircraft worldwide supply to our service portfolio', says Burckhard Schneider, President and CEO of Interturbine Group of Companies. 'Pilatus is the world market leader in the manufacture of single-engine turboprop aircraft. The Pilatus Aircraft material support is a consistent further development of our successful business.'

The Pilatus project will become a natural addition to the Interturbine service concept i.e. fast response, global presence and worldwide material handling capability as a ONE STOP SHOP SERVICE as already been appointed by Airbus, ATR, Dornier, Embraer and Eurocopter.
